JKUAT medical Student receives global award
Stephen Odiwuor Ochieng, a final year medicine student at Jomo Kenyatta University of Agriculture and Technology (JKUAT), has been crowned the winner of the 2019 Students Projects for Health Competition. The award by the US-based Foundation for Advancement of International Medical Education and Research (FAIMER), is in recognition of Odiwour's community initiative which seeks to address the burden of malnutrition among children enrolled in early childhood development centres in Kenya. https://www.standardmedia.co.ke/article/2001328417/jkuat-medical-student-receives-global-award
